It is not a parallel case, and it is out of place to cite it as such, and to set it forth as an example to follow in the present instance, that at the termination of our Civil War our Southern brethren were told to keep their horses, as they would need them to plough their fields. No one, perhaps, but the generous, noble-hearted General Grant would have thought this out so well, but the whole Nation applauded the magnanimous act; while at the same time, had it not occurred to the commander of our armies to do this, and the horses had been sold and the money turned into the Treasury, it would not have been accounted a wrong thing to be done. We are, indeed, the richer that the generous act was performed, but it is to be doubted if we would feel that way if Spain were to be released from obligation to pay this war debt

Sir. In Sunday's Tribune the editorial upon church-going has suggested much to my mind—I hope of value. Certainly it seems that if attending church in the cold months of the year is needful to our salvation, or even our welfare of soul, it must also be the same in the summer season. Last summer I was oblig in the city during Autiovernor's Island is in New-York Harbor. The tiovernor's Island is in New-York Harbor. The Fort Mamilton is on Long Island, Borough of a strength without which I should have been unfitted for what came to me to do. Had there been no such services at that moment it would have been most unfortunate, to say the least. Some who are obliged to be in the city in the summer may require greater sermons than many during the winter. Religion is not surely like the opera-just for the fashionable season. Is it not for every moment of life, as food is necessary for the body daily? Are these thoughts not embodied in our Lord's Prayer?

n our Lord's Prayer:

Do we not require sustaining food at all seasons, and great thoughts from the pulpit every Sunday in all places where people are, even the cities in summer, where perhaps the number of thinking people are fewer than in the winter? It is good to help even one such, and raise the others.

Ex-Fire Commissioner Sheffield said he would like to see the elections divorced from police interference, but the police were so powerful in the elections in this city that he was inclined to believe the taking of the Bureau of Elections out of the Police Department would not accomplish much good unless there was legislation to compel police impartiality and fairness at the polis.

William Brookfield, cx-Mayor Strong, Paul D. Cravath and other Republicans of prominence in the city said they were not prepared to express any views on the situation until they had seen a bill which expressed the views of Governor Black and had the support of other Republican leaders.

QUIGG MAKES HIS REPORT.

HOPES AND BELIEVES THAT THE GOVERNOR'S ACTION WILL BE SATISFACTORY.

Lemuel E. Quigg. president of the Republican County Committee, formally reported last night at a meeting of that organization the result of the recent conference with Governor Black upon the recent conference with Governor Back upon the question of the new election law. He said:

The committee which was appointed to wait upon Governor Black visited nim almost in its entirety, and received from the Governor a thorough and complete audience and were listened to with the greatest measure of consideration and attention, and they presented the subject to the Governor from what may perhaps be described as the organization point of view with completeness.

While I hesitate to speak for the Governor, I will undertake to say that he has at present no fixed purpose with regard to this vexed question. Of course, in intending to call the Legislature together he is compelled by statute, or, I may say rather, by the Constitution, to decare the purpose for which he so calls a special secsion of the Legislature. He feels that a considerable measure of responsibility rests upon him with regard to this subject, and he feels it his duty to present to the Legislature some sort of suggestion of the recommendations which he will make. At the same time, I am quite sure that even now he has arrived at no definite and conclusive opinion as to the lines upon which that recommendation will be based.

The committee have placed before him not a hard and fast proposition as to how he should deal with the subject in his recommendation, but have simply undertaken to explain to him, as only a political worker at the polis could possibly explain, just what the problem is that is to be solved. There was no effort on our part to kay before the Governor a bill. We simply did what we were asked to do, that was, to make suggestions.

The committee believe that their suggestions are receiving the consideration of the Governor, and they came from Albany in the hope and belief that the solution of these problems will be found to be entirely satisfactory to the Re-

Ex-Senator David B. Hill did not come to the city on that Mr. Hill would probably be down to day to-morrow. He would not say where the ex-Senator would go or whom he would see when he came here. Mr. Danforth dropped one significant remark. He said that an up-the-State man would be nominated for Governor by the Democratic State Convention. He expressed the opinion that Governor Black would be renominated, and he thinks a country man should oppose him. He would say nothing about New-York City's representation on the ticket. This prediction, of course, was based on the betief that the ex-Senator and his friends would control the convention. Mr. Danforth said that he had not decided on the date when he would call the State Committee together, but it would probably besome time next month. The truth is that ex-Senator Hill and Mr. Danforth both believe that the Croker-Murphy faction will not fight. They attribute Mr. Croker's continued absence in Europe and Senator Murphy's quietness to the fact that they have abandoned the contest. Several suspicious moves on the part of Senator Murphy looking toward harmony are regarded as indicating that he wants all factions united in order to give the party the best chance this fall, so that he may be returned to the Senate.
